

Peter Francis director of operations, Fusion21

Fusion21 supports 400+ members to make a real impact in the public and social sectors; whether that's realising bottom-line savings on the procurement of goods and services for property, construction and the built environment, or supporting the incredible work being undertaken in local communities.

Fusion21 offer a range of procurement services that are quality checked for compliant and socially responsible public procurement. We help our members to undertake a procurement process and only appoint suppliers who can demonstrate exceptional value for money in terms of cost, quality and social value.

We're committed to providing flexible, uncomplicated choices that make real commercial sense – and as a social enterprise every pound spent through our service helps to make a difference at a local level, through our community regeneration services.

Peter Francis is director of operations at Fusion21 and is responsible for all delivery activity. He brings a wealth of experience in finance, procurement and community regeneration over a career spanning 20 years in the public and private sector.

Peter was heavily involved in the delivery of the first Fusion21 Skills and Apprenticeship programmes, and has supported the development of both Community Regeneration and Procurement Services ever since.
